There are countless Americans who are upset given the strange atmosphere in the country. I wonder though how many are really thinking? There seems to be an attitude that some leader will emerge and move the country back in the right direction. I guarantee you, this will never happen. Unless ordinary people who live in houses and apartments, whom must work in order to survive, get aggressive in communicating their thoughts, there is absolutely no chance that most of them will avoid being destroyed financially.

Government is not about representing. It is not about creating fairness or opportunities. Government is for taking, not for giving. There is no chance anyone in the world will give up their own self interest and do good things for constituents. It has never happened yet. Watch, and see if it happens this time.

Honestly, if Americans are so inwardly focused and unwilling to lift a finger or spend a dime outside of the formal political process, the country is genuinely and certainly doomed. The formal political process is not working, so why are folks looking to it for solutions? With this mentality, the losses Americans are on the eve of experiencing, will be well deserved.

What does one yard sign do? Ask a real estate agent. They would not put signs in yards if people ignored them. Put a sign in your yard and it increases the probability someone else will do the same thing, Face it. Folks are waiting around for someone to give them permission to speak up, When a neighbor puts up a topical yard sign, that actually gives someone else permission to put one up also.

This is a new sign I have just ordered.

I am happy if anyone wants to use it as a template. The size is 24×18. The image is already the right dimensions. There is nothing sacred about my design. Make your own.
